Advertising Network

America's Newspapers launches member-supported ad network

Newspapers from across the country have united to support America's Newspapers through their donation of ROP advertising space. This program creates a great opportunity for advertisers to reach a premium audience at an attractive CPM rate.

Intersect Media has been selected as the agency to manage the program, but any member of America's Newspapers with a national sales force has the opportunity to sell these two quarter-page ads, helping to support America's Newspapers and earning a nice commission as well.

In addition to the proceeds benefiting members of America's Newspapers, the Advertising Network will provide advertisers an exceptional opportunity to reach dedicated readers who are engaged with their local newspaper and respond to advertising.

Proceeds from the Advertising Network will go directly to program development that will support newspapers of all sizes, including virtual professional training programs and robust marketing campaigns to promote the value newspapers provide to their local communities every day.

The America's Newspapers Advertising Network includes commitments from the nation's largest newspaper companies, including: Adams Publishing Group, Black Press, Boone Newspapers, Gannett, Paxton Media Group, Shaw Media, Smith Communications, WEHCO Media and Wick Communications.

PIVOT 2020: Session Highlight

Opening day of PIVOT to highlight two success stories where newspaper markets are expanding

While many newspapers have announced reduced print frequency or other cutbacks, expansions are being implemented in cities like Greenville and Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, and Denver, Colorado. What's making these market expansions possible and what's the future for these operations?

On the opening day of next month's PIVOT 2020 virtual conference, America's Newspapers will hear from two publishers who are leading efforts to expand into new markets.
