Candid conversations about our industry:
You need to be part of these discussions

Executive Voices: An exclusive event for top-level newspaper executives

Join the no holds barred conversation at Executive Voices, Dec. 10-11 in Chicago. This is your chance to sit down in a room with your peers from around the country to find solutions to newspapers' most pressing issues. No speakers and no PowerPoints. Just honest, open conversations!

Here's what you will gain from the candid conversations that will take place at Executive Voices:

"I came away from this one-day, formatted discussion with several actionable items I know will make a difference in my organization."

Jeff Patterson
President - Central Division
Adams Publishing Group
Minneapolis, Minn.

"Executive Voices is an excellent opportunity to go deep on critical thinking about business strategy with your peers."

Scott Campbell
Publisher
The Columbian Publishing Co.
Vancouver, Wash.

"This is a good opportunity to discuss some of the biggest and most important issues and opportunities our industry has. Participants spoke candidly and there was a number of to-do's (or, at least, to-try's) coming out of the sessions."

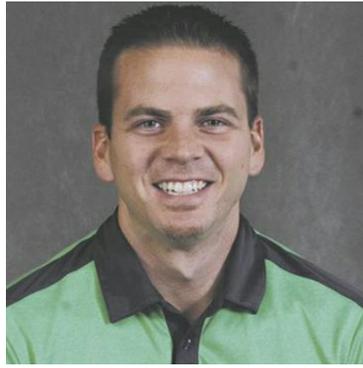

Bob Woodward
Vice President
Woodward Community Media

Print archives show past impeachments. Where will we go to find the history being made today?

Where will journalists turn for context in the next impeachment? Especially as news transitions to digital publishing, the best practices of preservation and ensuring public access are taking a back seat.

That's why researchers are working to draw attention to this issue and help marshal new resources to provide solutions.
